OBJECTIVES OF IIPC

The primary functions of an Industry-Institute Partnership Cell (IIPC) are to bridge the gap between academic theory and industry practice by organizing internships, workshops, and sponsored research projects; facilitate placement services for students through recruitment drives and skill training; and promote collaborative research and development initiatives between faculty and industry to foster innovation and align curricula with real-world demands. IIPCs also serve to enhance the skills and employability of students, promote faculty development, and help institutions gain expertise in the latest industrial practices

- To develop training programmes which are consistent with the requirements of the industry and to give rise to an incremental knowledge and talent base in our city
- To promote involvement of diverse industries in the cell to foster maximum interaction between students and industry mentors
- To promote a culture of continuous improvement amongst students – with respect to learning and updating their professional skills
- To bring about employability in students through various training programmes
- To join hands with the industry in creating a productive task force for manifesting progress of the youth of this city
